

Richard's Corner

This is my 200th edition of the 'Corner.' It seems odd to have reached this number so quickly because I don't recall putting in an effort for so long. What is clear to me is that, like preaching, there will always be something to write! The Bible states clearly that 'every day is new.' That is, every day is unique and unrepeatable. It is a special creation of God's with special characteristics and a special purpose. We tend to think in terms of recorded history where some dates are special (like 1066) and most others are not. This is not the case with God. With God every day is special and unique—a creation which is intended firstly to hold together all creation prior to it and all in front of it. 'Today' joins present with past in a unique way and because it is so we can never take a day for granted. Every day is, therefore, a gift. It is an offering to humankind both to improve on and to emulate. It is not quite a blank canvass but certainly a canvass with new possibilities and upon which we are called to contribute our creative offering. God says to us—you paint, you make, you sculpt, you build... and see what you can make of the day I've given you. And so our calling is to follow our Father in risking a creative act. The canvass is not just the day but the human lives which fill our day and through which and next to which we live our lives. As we offer the love of Christ to these lives so we begin to paint, sculpt, build within that day. And though we may not ever get to see the finished piece we can be sure that if we are emulating the Master whatever we do will become eternally beautiful and moving. Carpe Diem—seize the day!
